Dear friend and well beloved Bro: we are nearly related, in ^{the} Count of life, that runs over all and through all, though trials comes yea the Lord doth your name, all that hath an eye unto him bless be his name for ever, and now I have heard by this thou may understand that I did thin last night, and not unlooked for, because I had a concern upon me for some time such as I had not had concerning your family and therefore I did expect to hear something more than ordinary, for we are so near and so another that if one suffer, another hath a share, I have had a share, and am not yet free, my dear friend and well beloved in the Lord, is with I have unto me, and I have can go to bless the name of the Lord on his behalf while I have breath to spend, I have my soul to I have at me, thy wife and friends, I have almost finished in this north part, I shall the next week go towards Limerick, I shall be at a yearning meeting this day 2 weeks more, I am will be from Dublin, and if thou can write by the first it may come to my hand, how ever write, I shall order it I am in haste, thou knows my love is to you all, my love to Roger Haydock, the first I heard of Mr.
Haydock was when I came to Dublin, I am thy friend
